

Biobased polymers as construction materials – Recent developments at Soprema :

Polymers are important materials for the construction industry. They are widely used in Soprema's two main applications: waterproofing and thermal insulation. To move away from fossil resources, Soprema has undertaken a lot of research on the use of biobased and recycled polymers. This conference will present some of the recent achievements in this direction.